

Name	Award	Details	How to Apply
The John Ben Snow and Vernon Snow Fellowships in Non-Profit Management	40 credit hour tuition scholarship & 15,000 living stipend	Snow Fellows serve up to 16 hours per week at a local foundation (CNY Community Foundation) during the academic year.	Deadline for consideration is February 15.. To be considered for a Snow Fellowship award a separate letter of application is necessary. This letter should summarize your background and interests in non-profit management and state your commitment to enter this field upon graduation.
The Robertson Foundation for Government- Robertson Fellows Program	Full tuition for both years, living stipend of $20,000/yr plus health insurance, and Summer internship assistance	RFFG seeks to further their mission of helping to strengthen the Government of the United States and increase its ability and determination to defend and extend freedom throughout the world. Admitted students at the Maxwell School can pursue programs in the following two-year joint and concurrent degree programs that will prepare them for careers with the Federal Government: Public Administration/International Relations, International Relations/Economics, or Public Administration/Economics. In turn, Robertson Fellows are required to work for the Federal Government for 3 of the first 7 years after graduation and must have proficiency in a foreign language upon graduation.	To be considered for a Robertson Fellowship, applicants must submit an additional (250 word) statement outlining their academic and career goals and how these are aligned with the mission of the RFFG. This statement must also reaffirm the applicant's commitment to a career in the federal government upon graduation. The deadline is February 15.
The John L. and Stephanie G. Palmer Fellowships in Social Policy	a full time graduate assistantship and an additional cash stipend of $17,500 to be used toward additional tuition and/living expenses	Fellowships support students with a demonstrated interest in federal social welfare policy and/or fiscal and budgetary policy. Students with exceptional academic records, prior work/internship experience related to social and/or fiscal policy, and federal service career goals aligned with the Fellowship are invited to apply for the Palmer Fellowships in Social Policy.	Please indicate your interest in the Palmer Fellowship on your application (under financial aid consideration) or in your personal statement, as you outline your public service career goals.
Ajello Graduate Fellowship in Energy and Environmental Policy	a full time graduate assistantship and an additional cash stipend of $12,000 to be used toward additional tuition and/living expenses.	Ajello Fellows will be chosen based upon their demonstrated interest in energy and environmental policy, and exceptional academic preparation. Each Fellow will have the opportunity to engage in research projects under the direction of Professor Peter Wilcoxon, the Ajello Professor in Energy and Environmental Policy.	Please indicate your interest in the Ajello Graduate Fellowship on your application (under financial aid consideration) or in your personal statement, as you outline your interests and career goals as they relate to energy and environmental policy.