

Name	Award	Details	How to Apply
Gerald R. Ford Presidential Fellowship	full tuition, a generous stipend, internship funding, and professional development activities	Gerald R. Ford Presidential Fellows exemplify the president's commitment to bipartisan cooperation and civility, be deeply and positively engaged in community service, and intend to pursue a lifelong career in the public sector. In President Ford's name, these fellows will go on to build their own legacies, serving the interests of our state and nation by analyzing issues creatively and objectively, identifying actionable policy solutions, and building bipartisan consensus.	All admitted MPP students are automatically considered for this fellowship
The Weill Youth Policy Fellowship	two years of full tuition, a stipend, and health and dental care.	The Youth Policy Fellow is chosen for their scholarly excellence strong interest to make an impact in youth or education policy. The Fellow will work closely with Professor Brian Jacob and complete an internship with a Youth Policy Lab partner organization.	All admitted MPP students are automatically considered for this fellowship.
Merit-based fellowships	Funding ranges from $5,000 per year to full-tuition packages	N/A	All applicants to the Ford School are considered
Weiser Diplomacy	Students receive up to $25,000 per year, which is up to $12,500 in tuition support each semester for a maximum of two years of graduate study in international policy or international economic development.	The Weiser Diplomacy Center is pleased to offer several Weiser Diplomacy Fellowships that will fund admitted MPP or MPA students with demonstrated academic achievement who express deep interest in pursuing knowledge and practical policy skills related to diplomacy and foreign affairs in areas including international security, development, and/or human rights.	Complete separate application by March after being accepted to the graduate school